A LIST OF THE RECORDS
BELONGING TO
MR AND MRS FOLGER
IN
THE FOLGER SHAKESPEARE LIBRARY

Compiled ca. 1965

INTRODUCTION

The records of Mr and Mrs Folger which are in the Folger Shakespeare Library are only part of those which they must once have had. Certain kinds of papers, like the collection of booksellers' bills and receipts, have probably survived in their entirety. Others, like certain personal bills and letters, only sporadically. Mrs Folger sent ten cases of her husband's books and papers to the Standard Oil, Company of New York in June 1932. Many of the documents now in the library were deposited before Mrs Folger's death; a battered label bears the note "Mr Henry C. Folger. Cancelled checks; receipted bills, miscellaneous unsorted papers and scraps. These were removed from the closet in the cataloging room on September 26, 1935". More were added after Mrs Folger's death. Some of the photographs were received from the estate of Mrs Folger, April 7, 1936. A.S.W Rosenbach, presented 3 scrapbooks made by Mr and Mrs Folger during their college days, Sep. 22, 1939. E.J. Dimock, a nephew, presented 2 notebooks and one scrapbook, Oct. 12, 1939. Miss Myers gave E.J. Rogers' correspondence with Mrs Folger, Sep. 22, 1960.

The collection of records which thus found its way into the library had very little order and lay as a miscellaneous collection of crates, boxes, cartons and volumes. The present arrangement is by and large an artificial one. The bills and receipts for books which complement those in the catalogue office were abstracted and filed alphabetically by bookseller and were not included in this list. Plans of the building and certain printed works were added to the main collection. The rest of the collection was arranged as described below. Two groups were deliberately broken up. Among the personal correspondence were many programmes, invitations, tickets, subscriptions...which were placed in other categories. The subscriptions were filed with the financial records and any bulletins, correspondence, invitations...relating to the organizations to which Mr Folger subscribed filed with these subscriptions. Invitations to organizations of which Mr Folger does not ever appear to have been a member were filed with the personal correspondence. The scrapbooks (- March 1913), except for the three early ones, and loose collections of scrap material which continued the series (1913 -) were dismantled. Much loose material of a later date had been inserted and was so similar to other papers in the collection that it seemed better to rearrange it. The contents of all, apart from the three mentioned, had been listed by Mrs Folger and most of her lists are extant. Each item had been given a number and for the earlier scrapbooks this numbering started afresh with each volume, but in the later ones the numbers continued from one volume or group of papers to the next. These lists often give one a clue as to the date of a document. They also show that some are missing, particularly the illustrations.

Mr and Mrs Folger accumulated a large number of newspaper cuttings. They subscribed to several newspaper clipping agencies besides cutting out articles themselves. Not all have survived. The duplicate copies were removed; those which had some bearing on the Folgers, their friends and contemporaries, or on the library were listed. The rest, chiefly on the theatre, Shakespeare and Shakespearean studies, were added to the collection of scrapbooks in the main collection.

There is a box (unnumbered) of miscellaneous working papers at the end. It includes a partial index of persons mentioned in the list.

CALL NUMBERS

Numbers in red refer to the grey boxes, Boxes 1 - 66

Numbers in brown refer to the black boxes, Bl. Boxes 1 - 11

CORRESPONDENCE OF MRS FOLGER

BOXES 24 - 28

The envelopes are often docketed by Mrs Folger. In those cases where there are letters from Mrs Folger, they have been listed under the recipient's name. The letters of condolence addressed mainly to Mrs Folger on the death of her husband, marked *, were bound, not in strict alphabetical sequence, into a volume in 1933 and this is shelved at the end, Vol. 1. It includes the cards which accompanied flowers, the names of these flowers being duly noted on them. With this volume are also a volume of excerpts from some of these letters, Vol. 2, and a typescript copy of many of them and of many of those written in 1931 on the receipt of the book Henry C. Folger, entitled "Henry Clay Folger. An anthology of tribute, edited by James Waldo Fawcett 1932", Vol. 3. A letter from D.E. Kane, the binder, to Fawcett, Feb. 2, 1933, tipped into the large volume, discusses the two volumes. Letters marked * are in boxes: 40-41. See note on the Folger prize essays.

I The search for a site and a design for the library

The Folgers considered several cities before they finally chose Washington as the most suitable place in which to build their library. There is a note of nine towns and cities and the prices of one or more suitable sites in each. A.A. McCreary on behalf of Mr Folger corresponded with Walter B. Olive, a real estate broker, about favourable sites mainly in the neighbourhood of Fifth Avenue, Central Park and 77th to 88th Sts. in New York City, 1916-1918. At the same time he kept an eye for Mr Folger on several properties on Capitol Hill in Washington, including the one finally chosen. A later group of letters, 1925-1927, exchanged between J.C. Weedon. and Co., through which company Mr Folger acquired the site, Oswald A. Bauer, attorney and counsellor at law, A.G. Welsh and Mr Folger give some idea of how the Grant Row properties on which the present library stands were acquired piecemeal. The Folgers did not make their scheme public until 1928 when they learned that the government was intending to acquire the block which included these properties for an annex to the Library of Congress.
